Dear Parents and Carers

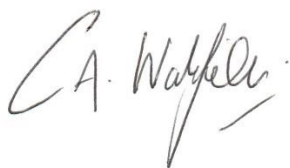

Re: Supporting Your Child during the Examination Period

As we fast approach the formal public examination period, despite the ongoing combination of support from the academy and home for our GCSE and A level students, invariably, they will still be feeling the pressure; some more than others of course. Therefore, in addition to the support already being provided, please find this informative, useful and concise parent/carers guide from the organisation 'YOUNGMINDS' that specifically focuses on how best to support your child during these intense and highly pressurised periods. There are also several other very useful items contained within this link including some further direct helplines:

As an academy, we will of course continue to strive to do our very best for your child as he/she works towards and through the formal examination period. However, do not hesitate to liaise with our teaching or pastoral staff if at any point in time you wish to discuss any matter of concern or to raise a specific issue. Open dialogue will always be viewed as constructive dialogue and we will look to work in collaboration with our respective parents and carers for the benefit of the young people we are most fortunate to work alongside on a daily basis.

Yours sincerely

Mr C A Wakefield
